A climate conference was held at the National Museum of Science and Technology (NMST) on Tuesday with emphasis on preserving greeneries and protecting forests. Around 350 students of Shaheed Bir Uttam Lt Anwar Girl's School and College, Dhaka participated in the conference.

Director General of National Museum of Science and Technology, Muhammad Munir Chowdhury urged the students to keep their school and home clean and green always. He said, "Japan has set exemplary model of ethical and environmental standards for the students from the beginning of their life. Our life should be simple, pro nature with high extent of morality. We should have green life, green practice, green technology, green marketing and green culture in every step of our life. The ozone layer has been depleting gradually posing risk of ultra violet ray." Three students from the school spoke on the occasion about the hazards of carbon emission. Later, prizes were distributed among the participants.
